

PARIS CELEBRATES ARMISTICE DAY

Admiral Bismarck and other officers of high rank.

Among the women were the wives of the ministers and members of the Diplomatic Corps, Princess Spitznagel-Macchia and members of the women's committee of the Union Interalliee, including Comtesse de Beaumont, Comtesse Jean d'Armon, Comtesse Benoit d'Azay, wife of the former Naval Attaché of the French Embassy in Washington; Mrs. John Ridgeley Carter, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Thayer, Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, Duchess of Cambray, Mrs. Samuel Nave, Mrs. Charles Payson and various other women who are prominent in society and interested in the Union Interalliee.

Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, assisted by several Bishops, officiated at the ceremony and gave the benediction. In the center of the church was the catafalque of the Unknown Soldier, draped with the French flag, and Red Cross nurses wearing their war uniforms and decorations, and programmes for the benefit of the "Fondation de la Victoire."

The Colonne orchestra, conducted by M. Gabriel Piere, opened the programme with the "Chant Funerale" of Gabriel Faure and closed with the "Marche Heroique" of Saint-Saens. The Canon of the cathedral at Rouen delivered an address.

There were many number of luncheon parties in celebration of the day and dinners were popular at the Cafe de Paris and at Ciro's. The Carlton Hotel and also Claridges turned their weekly gala dinners into victory celebrations when the dining salons were gayly decorated with the flags of the Allies and the favours were silk banners, flags and models pertaining to the victory.

The guests at in all Paris was the new restaurant Vignon, where Miss Eliza Maxwell gave a brilliant party by way of a children's ball. There were 200 guests, all of whom were dressed in juvenile costumes which had been designed by Gabrielle Chanel, and the ballroom presented a most artistic picture. Among those present were the Duchess of Sutherland, Duchesse de Noailles, Prince Assolvi Marat, Duc and Duchesse Dural, Grand Duke Dimitri and Grand Duke Boris of Russia, Marquis and Marquise de Polignac, Mrs. Parnely W. Herick, Princess Lucien Murat, Mr. Anthony J. Drexel, Vicepresident and Vicepresident of the Union Interalliee, Mrs. Fred Bate, Miss Yonaga, Mrs. Ralph Hickox, Miss. Cheneil, Lord Alastair Innes Kopp, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fellows, Mrs. William Dighton, Lady Cheatham, Comte and Comtesse de Beaumont, Mr. and Mrs. D. Prefussis, Princess San Faustino, Duc and Duchesse de Toulon, Prince and Princess de Cambray, Miss Demarest, Mr. Maurice Stern, Lord Carnarvon, M. and Mrs. Henri Bernstein, Col. Hawes, Mr. Edward Montgomery, Col. Winslow, Mrs. Helen Gwynne, Miss. Annankoff, Miss Palmer Jones, who added much to the evening by singing all of the latest New Yorker ragtime songs.

Ciro's was another gayly decorated spot, with banners flying and ballrooms floating all the colors of the Allies. Among those giving parties were Mr. and Mrs. E. Berry Wall, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Volok, Comte and Comtesse Andre de Linnar (the Comtesse de Linnar was Miss Crocker), Comte and Comtesse de Rougemont, Mr. and Mrs. Florence Fox, Mrs. Laurence C. Brown, Mrs. Marguerite, Miss. Marguerite Brown, who is out this winter; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet and their niece, Miss Margaret Elmer of New York, who were guests for the winter.

The Cafe de Paris was equally gay and many who had been to Ciro's for dinner were there for supper and vice versa. Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, who recently returned from New York, was among the Americans dining. She was with the Baron d'Erbeny, Mr. Antonio de Navarro and Mr. Henry Downs who were with parties of American friends.

Among the Americans giving luncheon parties at the Ritz were Prince Christopher and Princess Anastasia of Greece. The guests were the Duchesse de San Felino and her son, and Mr. Nicolopolo, Capt. and Mrs. Erskine-Bolst, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Lohr, Mr. and Mrs. Hahnemann, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Phillips, Mrs. Ives Douglas, Count and Countess Wachtmeister, Mr. and Mrs. M. El Bashford, who recently returned from Italy and are preparing to go on to Saint Moritz for the Christmas holidays; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carter, who are leaving this week for Cannes to open their villa for the winter; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. Milner and Mr. William Roach, who is here to put his young son in school for the winter.

A small social event that was of interest in the American colony during the week was the reception that was held by the Baron and Baronesse de Villiers du Terrage for the christening of their seven weeks old baby daughter. The Baronesse de Villiers was Miss Ruth King of New York. The christening ceremony took place at the Church of Saint Francois Xavier, with Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, officiating. The sister of the Baronesse, Mrs. Charles de Rham, Jr., of New York, acted as godmother and Vicomte de Villiers du Terrage as godfather.

The American Women's Club is becoming much more of a social centre than it ever has been and the American women of Paris are growing to appreciate its great value. The tea hour is really smart and the musical evenings under the direction of Mrs. Walter Abbott are popular and the programmes are proving to be exceptionally good. Last week the artists were Mme. Blanche Marchesi, Mme. Marguerite Chaigneau and M. Vincent d'Indy, who has since left for America, and each programme throughout the winter has been chosen with much care.

With the weather at last cold, women are taking more of an interest than ever in clothes and the dressmakers are giving new fashion shows every day. Women seem to think they are called upon to say there is nothing new in clothes no matter what changes may be starting them in the face. The truth is that they rather fear a change but are not willing to acknowledge it. As to the change in lines, nothing is more widely separated from the straight and narrow frocks without sleeves than those with full circular skirts and huge hairy arm coverings. It is true that these circular lines have not as yet taken such a hold on the world of fashion that nothing else counts. There are as many if not more of the straight dresses worn, but when such artists as Worth, Paquin and Patou make the fuller lines the basis of their collections it is time to realize that styles are undergoing a change and that exceedingly new things are being offered.

Wide Circular Lines Urged.

Practically all of the Paris dressmakers are showing a few models on the full new line, though they insist that women can be just as smart by clinging to the long, slender silhouette, but the mere fact that there are some of the most important creators who are showing nothing but the full circular lines means that another season will tip the scales in favor of a new mode.

Poirot is the one dressmaker that has been urging the long, wide skirts for the last three seasons and when such conservative dressmakers as Worth suggest that the time has come to at least consider the wide circular lines, women listen and probably will abide by his verdict by purchasing at least one frock on the new circular lines, even though it may be doomed to rest comfortably on its hanger throughout the season.

There is this to be said, however, of the wider skirts and circular movement of both Worth and Patou in comparison to those of Poirot. The former merely suggest the new note by putting circular inserts into the skirt, thus preventing it from appearing heavy in contrast to the narrow lines. The Worth skirts are perfectly flat in back and front, and the circular fullness is introduced in hip inserts running to a point at the waist line.

New Jersey's Great Fish Hatchery

AT Hackettstown on the Lackawanna Railroad, the State of New Jersey maintains one of the largest and best equipped Fish Hatcheries in the United States. Hewn from a wilderness and raised from a swamp—in 1912 waste land and in 1921 an imposing scientific station—this is its inspiring story.

From the Hatchery's 11 buildings and 164 ponds there went out in 1920 and 1921 some 63,000,000 fish for stocking streams throughout the State. They included pickerel, brook, brown and rainbow trout; yellow and pike perch; small and large-mouthed bass. They were hatched out in quantities equivalent to 127,000 per day and, had they been shipped on a uniform schedule throughout the year, would have left the Hatchery at the rate of a truck-load every 24 hours.

This great mass of fish, in sizes best fitted for survival, was liberated or "planted" in a total of 247 streams and 84 lakes in New Jersey—an extremely vital work which many fishermen scarcely know about or realize.

The Hatchery's 118 acres comprise a beautiful park, with the main group of buildings and a double line of ponds as a central feature. All the ponds, if placed end to end, would stretch out to a distance of two miles. They contain five miles of concrete sidewalls and 12,000,000 gallons of water, 2,500,000 gallons of which are renewed daily. The water is of exceptional purity and is largely obtained from state-controlled springs on the property. It passes through three miles of piping and 800 valves and is used in 600 jars in the Main Hatchery Building, each of which is capable of caring for 100,000 eggs.

The various pools each contain 3,000 to 50,000 fish, according to size. These fish consume 1,000 lbs. of meat a day, and, if you are fortunate, you may have a chance to witness the astounding spectacle of shoals of finny creatures actually eating from Superintendent Hayford's hands.

The Hatchery from its beginning has been under the direction of the New Jersey Board of Fish and Game Commissioners of which Ernest Napier of East Orange is President. Visitors receive every courtesy and are cordially invited to inspect the Station at any time except the last week in May and the first two weeks in June.

The Commissioners also maintain a game and bird preserve at Forked River in South Jersey. Here, as at the Hatchery, they are performing important work in the propagation and conservation of the wild life of their State.
